

UNIQUE CONCEPTIONS HONOR MEMORY OF FIRST PRESIDENT

SIXTY-FIVE HUNDRED defenders of the nation, armed, ready for action, marching through Honolulu's streets before the eager eyes of forty thousand people provided patriotic demonstration here for Washington's birthday such as no other city or nation displayed.

Honolulu's guests for the Mid-Pacific Carnival were privileged by that parade to witness a greater gathering of Uncle Sam's fighting forces than has ever before marched in peaceful and patriotic display.

Men of the United States Army—infantry, cavalry and artillery—an entire division of three brigades—marched up King Street and, flanking them right and left, from beginning to end of the march, were thousands of spectators, thrilled and inspired by the flag for which the soldiers marched.

Mats Off To Flag

And it was "Hats off!" to the flag throughout the length of the parade, for it was the day of the Stars and Stripes throughout the nation, the day dedicated to the Father of the Country. Gay Carnival crowds thronged in the bleachers about the reviewing stand and the sidewalks from end to end of the line of march were crowded with thousands of Honolulu's cosmopolitan population.

With the regulars marched the National Guard of Hawaii; the naval militia and cadets of Honolulu's schools. Uncle Sam's fighting forces, all of them, in peaceful and patriotic display of national preparedness in Hawaii.

For the brief hour of the march of troops, Honolulu's week of gaiety was headed for the serious but thrilling thoughts inspired by the parade of the men that hold high the Stars and Stripes.

Governor Reviews Parade

Governor Pinkham received the review as the troops marched by the Capitol grounds. But it was more than the formal review that prompted the spontaneous outbursts of pride and applause in every loyal American citizen. It was the pageant of patriotism that roused the shouts of praise that greeted the marchers down the length of the street. And each time the bugle passed by, the spectators in silent reverence paid tribute to the nation's emblem.

There was not lacking the martial sound. For the trend of marching troops was to the tune of military bands.

Brig.-Gen. Frederick S. Strong, commander of the Hawaiian department, rode at the head of the column. It was the first time that he had led his command here in public parade.

Bleachers Are Jammed

The reviewing stand of Governor Pinkham and his party was located at the entrance to the Capitol grounds and about the stand were the bleachers, jammed to the last seat.

As the troops passed in review through the triangle of space bordered by the bleachers, enthusiastic applause drowned the sound of marching, the clatter of hoofs, the grind of gun-carriages. The same message of appreciation from the people greeted the soldiers throughout the line of march. As the long columns passed in review, every man looked to the left and officers saluted.

Promptly at half-past nine, Brigadier General Strong, rode into King Street at the head of his command and started the parade on its way from River Street.

Officers on Staff

The officers of department headquarters were General Strong's staff at the head of the parade. They were Lieut. Col. Francis E. Lacey, Jr., general staff, chief of staff; Capt. Henry C. Merriman, general staff, assistant to chief of staff; Col. James H. McEne, adjutant general, department adjutant-general's department; Maj. J. M. Camara, N. G. H.; Maj. J. W. Short, N. G. H.; Col. Gaylord Wilcox, N. G. H.; Capt. J. H. Morgan, N. G. H.; Capt. Henry Van Giesen, N. G. H.; Capt. George E. Clark, U. S. N., commander of the Pearl Harbor naval station; Lieut. Benjamin Tilley, U. S. N., aide to Captain Clark; Capt. Charles R. Bowditch, Q. M. C., N. G. H.; Lieut. Col. Charles B. Cooper, medical corps, N. G. H.; Charles Chillingworth, president of the territorial senate; H. L. Holstein, speaker of the house; J. F. Haley, internal revenue collector; George Angus, president of the Carnelian company; Dr. A. N. Sinclair; Mayor Lame, Capt. Leopold G. Blaschka; Mayor N. G. H.; Palmer Woods, W. W. Thayer, Secretary of the Territory; H. M. von Holt, Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Mrs. John C. Lane, Mrs. L. G. Blaschka, Mrs. W. W. Thayer, Mrs. James D. Dougherty, Mrs. Harry Hoffman, Mrs. Samuel J. Johnson, Mrs. Reynold McGrew, Mrs. John C. Johnson, Mrs. Charles R. Clark, Mrs. Frederick S. Strong, Mrs. A. N. Sinclair, Mrs. Henry Van Giesen, Mrs. Benjamin Tilley, Mrs. C. R. Bowditch and daughter, Miss Stewart of San Francisco, guest of the governor; Richards Burne and J. F. Fleming of Cleveland, Ohio.

The Thirty-second Infantry followed next, Hawaii's own regiment, which was formed here last July. Heartily applauded greeted "Hawaii's Own" throughout the line of march, and the regiment's band played "Atahau" in march time. Maj. Samuel P. Lyon rode at the head of this regiment.

Along Comes the Guard

Next in line was the provisional brigade, formed from the Second Infantry of Fort Shafter, a provisional regiment of coast artillery, and the First Hawaiian Infantry, national guard. Col. D. L. Howes rode at the head of the Second Infantry. Col. W. E. Ellis, of Fort Ruger, rode at the head of the coast artillerymen. Col. Richard C. Croxton, regimental commander and instructor-general in national guard work here, was at the head of the guardsmen. He was accompanied by his staff officers.

The guardians were of particular interest to the spectators, for they were "our own citizens," and friends and relatives greeted them cheerfully as they marched by. The machine gun company attached to the First Infantry, and commanded by Capt. Lawrence Judd, had its four machine guns out for the first time in public parade.

Artillery Comes Next

Next in the line of march was the field artillery, the First Regiment, of Schofield Barracks. The ammunition wagons on one side of the street and the caissons on the other, each drawn by six horses, and with drivers astride and the gunners seated two by two on the wagons, made a dashing picture. The officers rode between the files. A Red Cross ambulance brought up in the rear.

After the field artillery came the Fourth Cavalry, headed by Lieut.-Col. William T. Littlebrett, of Schofield Barracks, with his staff officers.

There were two mounted bands, an artillery band and a cavalry band, both of which rendered good marching tunes that were true to time.

Seamen Come Next

Hawaii's naval militia were next in line, an attractive group in their neat white uniforms. Lieut.-Comdr. W. H. Strong headed the naval militia. The cadets of Kamchamela School, headed by Capt. A. J. Booth, infantry, instructor at the school, followed after the militia. Last of the marchers were the cadets of the Honolulu Military Academy.

Admirable work was done by the Boy Scouts of the city led by the commissioners and patrol leaders in helping to care for the crowds.

Among those in the reviewing stand with Governor Pinkham were Maj. James D. Dougherty, N. G. H., aide to the Governor; Brig.-Gen. Samuel L. Johnson, adjutant-general, N. G. H.; Maj. Laurence Redington, N. G. H., adjutant-general's department; Maj. J. M. Camara, N. G. H.; Maj. J. W. Short, N. G. H.; Col. Gaylord Wilcox, N. G. H.; Capt. J. H. Morgan, N. G. H.; Capt. Henry Van Giesen, N. G. H.; Capt. George E. Clark, U. S. N., commander of the Pearl Harbor naval station; Lieut. Benjamin Tilley, U. S. N., aide to Captain Clark; Capt. Charles R. Bowditch, Q. M. C., N. G. H.; Lieut. Col. Charles B. Cooper, medical corps, N. G. H.; Charles Chillingworth, president of the territorial senate; H. L. Holstein, speaker of the house; J. F. Haley, internal revenue collector; George Angus, president of the Carnelian company; Dr. A. N. Sinclair; Mayor Lame, Capt. Leopold G. Blaschka; Mayor N. G. H.; Palmer Woods, W. W. Johnson, Mrs. Reynold McGrew, Mrs. John C. Johnson, Mrs. Charles R. Clark, Mrs. Frederick S. Strong, Mrs. A. N. Sinclair, Mrs. Henry Van Giesen, Mrs. Benjamin Tilley, Mrs. C. R. Bowditch and daughter, Miss Stewart of San Francisco, guest of the governor; Richards Burne and J. F. Fleming of Cleveland, Ohio.

JAPANESE FATHER SAFE NOW WITH HIS SON ON OAHU

Yaei Daizen, a native of the prefecture of Yamaguchi, Japan, is at last legally in the United States and happy in the company of his adopted son, Yaei Daizen, after having once been ordered deported by the local United States immigration authorities.

The son is thirty-three years old; the father is thirty-seven—only four years older than the son. The father is a great admirer of the late Lord Kitchener, who never married, and Yaei several years ago decided to imitate the war lord of Great Britain in that respect. So, in order to have some one to whom to leave his property and family pride when he should die, Yaei Daizen adopted Yaei Daizen.

Yaei came to Hawaii to live and was engaged in pineapple growing at Paiaia, Maui. He sent for his adopted father to come to Hawaii to join him, but when the man arrived, he was refused a landing by the immigration authorities on the ground that he was not the real father of Yaei.

Arthur K. Ozawa, the Japanese attorney, appealed the case to Washington and last Tuesday orders were received to admit Yaei Daizen to the United States.

The infirmary marched by platoons, three squads to each platoon.

Following General Treat and his officers was the Twenty-fifth Infantry, led by their band.

Col. Samuel L. Faison, regimental commander, rode at the head of the Twenty-fifth Infantry.

LANE AND MURRAY BELIEVE VOTERS PASSED BOND ISSUE

Have the municipal bonds passed? Did the votes cast Wednesday go for or against the $480,000 water and sewer bonds?

Harry Murray, superintendent of the department having these services in charge, and strenuous worker for the bonds, declares that the bonds have passed, but that the matter must be taken to the supreme court before the issue can be authorized.

Major C. K. Lane, who also lent his aid to the election Wednesday, is of the same opinion as his appointee. Supervisor Ben Hollinger and Supervisor Dan Logan are inclined to the same opinion.

If such ballots count, then the bond election Wednesday is lost.

This is the summary of the returns:

Votes for water bonds.....	1828
Votes for sewer bonds.....	1772
Total	3600
Votes against water bonds.....	1070
Votes against sewer bonds.....	1048
Total	2118
Votes uncounted for miskarking.....	255
Total votes cast (rejected ballots not counted).....	6718
Total votes cast including rejected ballots	6973

On the theory that only properly marked ballots can be counted in any way, the water works bonds carried by eighty votes and the sewer by ninety.

If the opposite theory is entertained by the supreme court and it is held that the improperly marked and discarded ballots figure in the election, 1018 votes of at least sixty per cent of the regular voters voting on said election.

If such ballots count, then the bond election Wednesday is lost.

This is the summary of the returns:

Votes for water bonds.....	1828
Votes for sewer bonds.....	1772
Total	3600
Votes against water bonds.....	1070
Votes against sewer bonds.....	1048
Total	2118
Votes uncounted for miskarking.....	255
Total votes cast (rejected ballots not counted).....	6718

Counted, and a voter cannot be said to have voted until he has thus marked his ballot," said Harry Murray.

Booth Opened Too Late

In the fourth precinct of the fourth district it is insisted by several residents there that at least twenty-five voters were unable to cast their ballots because of the late hour the booth opened. The election booths were supposed to open at eight o'clock, but at eight-twenty o'clock, it is claimed, this booth was not open, and many were obliged to leave, unable to wait longer.

Major Lane takes the same position as Harry Murray, and says that every effort will be made to get a decision from the supreme court as soon as possible.

One of the results of the present mix-up is the apparent determination to guard against so many ballots being thrown out in the future by securing the rubber cross stamp which is used generally on the mainland. The crosses are put on the ballots with these stamps.

The official court has not been made yet by the county clerk, and probably will not be completed until some time today or tomorrow. The case was closed yesterday. But it is not at likely that the official count will change the situation as it appears now, the above figures having been received by the clerk and are only lacking in official tabulation.

"I believe the only fair interpretation the court can make is that the improperly marked ballots can have no effect whatever on the election; that they should mean no more than a newspaper checked in the box. A vote certainly is not a vote until the ballot is marked correctly so that it can be

SERGEANT KNOCKED DOWN BY TOURIST'S AUTOMOBILE

First Sgt. R. Chubb, Company G, Twenty-fifth Infantry, was knocked down early yesterday morning by an automobile driven by J. E. Nothingham, a tourist, and sustained a simple fracture of the right leg and a compound fracture of the left leg. He was given first aid at the emergency hospital and was later removed to the Fort Shafter hospital. The accident occurred on King Street near Young Street. Chubb is said to have stepped out in front of a motor truck and into the path of Nothingham's machine.

Mrs. David Maluna was taken to the emergency hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from a beating inflicted by her husband. She is only seventeen years old. The affair took place at the corner of Punchbowl and Haleakula Streets and the woman was bruised about the face and body.

Yesterday afternoon Joseph Cabral fell from street car No. 41, on King Street near Fort Street, and sustained a cut
